

RICH RUG MAKER AGAIN ARRESTED AS PICKPOCKET

Manufacturer on Bail Upon
Similar Charge Again Prisoner.

CAUGHT IN SUBWAY JAM

Real Estate Dealer Says He Found Man's Hand in His Pocket.

The amazing story of Louis Wolf, and his alleged dual personality was revived today when the Brooklyn rug manufacturer was arraigned in the Jefferson Market Court on a charge of attempted grand larceny, growing out of an effort to pick a man's pocket on a subway platform. A sensation was created in Brooklyn in December when the merchant, respected, prosperous and well liked by all who knew him, was arrested on a charge of being a pickpocket. After spending some time in the Raymond street jail, he was released on bail.

A peculiar feature of Wolf's arrest is District Attorney Clarke's statement today that Wolf's trial for his first offense was slated for yesterday and that it was postponed at the State's request owing to a lengthy trial now in process before Judge Fawcett in the Brooklyn Court.

Mr. Clarke says Wolf unquestionably left court and went directly to the subway station where he was caught. Duncan McKinley, of No. 618 West One Hundred and Forty-fifth street, a real estate dealer, has had his pocket picked three times in less than a year, and so cautious has he become that when he felt somebody fumbling about in his pocket as he stood in the Fourteenth street subway station about 6 o'clock last night he quickly turned and seized a man, who, when taken to the Mercer street police station by Special Policeman McBride, of the Interborough, said he was Louis Wolf, proprietor of the Textile Rug Manufactory, at No. 237 Fulton street, Brooklyn, and declared he was innocent of the charge. Soon afterward he was identified as the man whose arrest in Brooklyn a short time ago aroused so much interest.

It was late in December that Louis Wolf was locked up in the Raymond street jail on a charge of picking $50 from the pocket of a Ridgewood man named Heller on a Myrtle avenue car several weeks before. Wolf was a well-dressed, pleasant-faced young man, and for more than a year had been a respected rug manufacturer in East New York.

Old Offender, Said Police.

Yet Capt. Kenna, in charge of Brooklyn Detective Headquarters, said at the time that Louis Wolf, the rug maker, was undoubtedly the Louis Wolf who had served terms in Chicago and St. Louis for pocket-picking. His idea was that when Wolf went to Brooklyn from the West he intended to settle down and lead an honest life, but found that the street cuts afforded such an easy way of getting money and valuables that he could not resist the temptation to return to his old pursuit. The picture from the St. Louis Rogues' Gallery, he declared, was a better picture of Wolf than the one taken for the Brooklyn gallery.

Wolf was said by the police to be twenty-nine, single, and came to New York from Chicago in 1906, opening a carpet and rug factory at Fulton and Bradford streets, which he called the "Textile Rug and Upholstering Works." At one time he had a partner, but later took over the business himself, and called it the "Textile Rug Works."

Although Detective Reynolds was certain Wolf was also the same man who arrested last summer for trying to pick his pocket on a car, Wolf had many friends who came forward to express confidence in him. Reynolds at the time took the picture from a Halpin avenue car and looked him up, but weakened later at Wolf's protestations and did not press a charge.

Nothing further was heard of Wolf until the middle of December, when Heller's pocket was picked. Wolf said he got off a car to go to the office of an acquaintance, and the first thing he knew several persons were running after him, and he was arrested charged with taking $50 from a man.

Declared His Innocence.

The money was not found on him. Wolf said he was innocent, and was paroled by Magistrate O'Reilly in the Manhattan avenue police court, giving bond the following day. When the police began to get busy, and told what they believed about Wolf's Jekyll and Hyde life, his bondsmen became dubious and surrendered him, but he took to his heels philosophically, and when committed to jail began by giving all the prisoners Christmas presents of tobacco, pipes and candies.

STOCKS DULL WITH THE PRICES MIXED

Delaware and Hudson Suffers
Sharp Cut, but Some Leaders Show Gains.

Prices of stocks early to-day yielded but slightly on the announcement of the closing of two of the New York Clearing-House banks. Offerings at the opening were light and declines limited generally to small fractions. Delaware & Hudson fell 2-8. Great Northern Ore Certificates 1 and St. Louis Southwestern preferred and the American Smelting stocks large fractions. Later in the session the list sagged off and fell below yesterday's closing. Trading continued dull.

Very little interest was manifested in the market during the day, and fluctuations were accordingly narrow and without much significance. The list overcame the earlier heaviness and returned to the level of yesterday's closing. There was some improvement in the final dealings, several of the leaders showing fractional gains, but prices were mixed at the close, with trading somewhat brisk.

The total sales of stock were 381,300 shares, and of bonds $3,174,000.

Take one Cascaret just as soon as you know that you need it. Then you won't need a purgative. It is an easy and pleasant way to keep well.

This is the day of the gentle in medicine. The cathartic pill is old-fashioned. Salts and castor oil belong to grandmother's time.

The modern doctor deals mildly. Cascarets are effective, yet gentle. They don't irritate or gripe. They don't, like cathartics, waste the digestive fluids.

Cascarets do only what some foods will do, what some fruits will do, what exercise does for the bowels.

Their action is natural, not artificial.

If you live out-of-doors, exercise a great deal, and avoid rich foods, you don't need them.

Otherwise you do.

The most helpful laxative ever devised is Cascaret.

Then, they are candy tablets, pleasant to take.

Then, they are convenient. The ten-cent box fits the vest pocket or the lady's purse.

That is a vital point.

The time to take a laxative is the minute you suspect that you need it. Don't wait till you get home; don't wait till night.

One Cascaret, taken promptly, wards off trouble.

Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure to get the genuine, with CCC on every tablet. The price is 50 cents, 25 cents and 10 Cents per Box.

'GAY WHITE WAY' LURED JERSEY GIRL FROM HOME

Mother of Sixteen-Year-Old
"Lost" Daughter Causes
Arrest of Two Men.

Sixteen-year-old Florence Perkins' dreams of the "Gay White Way" were rudely jarred when her mother and a Gery society officer broke into the apartment of Haskein Kotzel and Ernest Newton, at No. 118 West Twenty-third street, and found the girl in the company of the two men. Both men were arrested and arraigned in Jefferson Market Court today.

The discovery of the girl followed a mother's incessant search and extraordinary luck after four sleepless days and nights. Florence lived with her mother in Somerville, N. J. Last Saturday she left the house to visit some friends in another part of the town. When she did not return Monday the mother's uneasiness grew to distraction. She searched every nook and corner in the town and wrote to all her relatives, but none knew of Florence.

Yesterday she again visited a girl friend of her daughter in Sumnerville. As she stood at the door, a letter-carrier brought a letter. She recognized her daughter's handwriting, seizing the note, the mother tore it open and read:

"Please write me at once how dear old mother is. I'm awfully anxious to know. Does she miss me? Hurry a reply. Am having a dandy time here. Write me No. 118 West Twenty-third street, care Mr. Kotzel."

Warning the daughter's friend not to speak, the mother took the first train to New York, told the Gery Society and found her child.

Miss Perkins was turned over to the custody of the Gery Society. Kotzel said he was married and that he lived at No. 41 Clayton street, Boston. He said he had met the Perkins girl in a skating rink in Boston. Newton's home is in Nassau, N. H., and he is working here and occupying adjoining rooms to those of Kotzel. Both are twenty years old and employed in grown hotels.

BIG MAN OF PATRICK'S DAY.

Five delegates from each division of the Ancient Order of Hibernians in New York County will meet to-night in Curry's Hall, No. 229 East Forty-seventh street, to select a grand marshal for the coming St. Patrick's Day parade, which is to be the greatest in the history of the order.

Three candidates are entered for the honor. They are P. J. Mulloy, of Division No. 8; P. J. Gilroy, of Division No. 20, and M. J. Cowan, of Division No. 16. They are three fine looking lads.

A Fish is as Good as it's Cooked

When properly cooked and served there is nothing more pleasing to hungry mortals' gustatory sense than a nice fresh fish. There's a great variety of fish and an almost equal variety of methods of cooking and serving fish; but no matter how you cook it, a small quantity of ARMOUR'S EXTRACT OF BEEF added to the sauce will lend a piquancy and relish that can be obtained in no other way.

If your dishes lack "tastability," try Armour's Extract of Beef—the kind that has taste-ability.
